

Jane Street is a quantitative trading firm that uses innovative technology, a scientific approach, and a deep understanding of markets to guide our business. We are a global liquidity provider and market maker, operating around the clock and around the globe, out of offices in New York, London and Hong Kong. The markets change rapidly, and we need to change faster still. Every day, we come to work with new problems to solve, new systems to build and new theories to test. We're always looking for people to join us and help come up with that next great idea. The environment is intellectual and collaborative, relaxed and playful, with a strong focus on education. You'll learn about trading and our technology stack through in-house classes, guest lectures, and on-the-job experiences. You'll have the freedom to get involved in many different areas of the business and we're small enough that you can quickly and clearly see the impact of your work. At Jane Street, we consider trading and programming to be two ends of a continuum. As both a trading firm and a tech firm, we have room for people who love to trade, people who love to program, and people everywhere in between. Nearly all of our traders write code, and many of our developers trade. The role you carve out for yourself will be largely dependent on your strengths and the types of problems you enjoy thinking about.

EXAMPLES OF INTERESTING PROJECTS

- Software is an integral part of how we approach problems, whether we're designing a trading strategy, managing the operational complexities of a new trade-flow, or administering servers in locations across the globe. Trading is a demanding business, and that means the standards for our software are high on every front, including clarity, performance, safety, and turnaround time.
